

NO MATTER WHAT THE HOLIDAY IS OR TIME OF YEAR

Some kids don't like to show their faces.

WIZARD'S WISDOM - Some kids are unfortunate in having to deal with scars, other disfigurements, or handicaps. It's easy to laugh, tease, or in other ways belittle these kids, but nice kids learn to be more sensitive and kind. Engage kids in conversation about this issue and explain gentler ways of behaving, such as sharing a kindly smile or a few encouraging words. Warn kids about abrasive behavior that can also leave emotional scars, such as calling them freaky names or ridiculing them in front of others. You might consider sharing a few images of these handicaps from the Internet.
