

Meaningful Conversation Speech Script Page 2

Conversation is a fundamental means of civilized communication. As such, learning how to create conversation skillfully is a critical aspect of our basic education. Building conversation skills improves our sense of composure and connection with those in our inner circle of friends and family, as well as many other people we encounter each day.

Learning how to construct healthy, well-choreographed conversation is an important aspect of relating well with others. Preparing meaningful conversation is a gesture of kindness and a measurement of one's ability to articulate well. The more appropriately we are able to express ourselves as we communicate, the more approachable others consider us to be.

For most of us, conversing at a high EQ level doesn't just happen. Improving conversational skills necessitates developing a more delicate sense of what is involved and what is fitting.

Articulating well in conversation requires not only appearing intelligent and interesting to others, but more importantly, revealing how thoughtful, diplomatic, and resourceful we are about getting to know others and showing interest in them.

Without enough training in the appropriate etiquette rules and guidelines of meaningful conversation, we can too easily approach conversation from a socially deficient standpoint and appear rather self-centered, shy, or uncaring.

In truth, we may just forget important happenings in other people's lives. Yet, the other person might misinterpret our less educated mode of understanding as lacking attention, consideration, and friendliness. We also may be so interested in sharing our own thoughts and ideas that we absorb conversations without realizing that we need to pause and ask questions showing interest in others or let them talk for a while.

Observing the quality of our existing conversation skills is necessary to sharpen our awareness of any deficiencies. Such investigation helps us to realize the need for improvement. In the past, we may not have thought of questioning the quality of our conversation. However, after examining its content, we might find that we ramble on, rather than truly discussing meaningful subject matter. We may not consider whether we are contributing meaningful points and valuable topics.

Being aware of the dynamics of meaningful conversation and learning to apply the elements involved provide distinct personal and professional assets. Yet like learning to write with excellence, dynamic conversation requires specific direction and practice.

In closing, many of these conversation skills require little education— just an understanding of valuable preplanning homework and guidelines.

We can become more conversely articulate in an emotionally meaningful way. The quality of our relationships and real depth of our social interactions depend on not only our emotional feelings toward others, but also on how well we have learned to communicate.

I THANK YOU FOR LISTENING. PLEASE STAY WITH ME AND LEARN SKILLS THAT WILL ENHANCE THE DEPTH OF YOUR CONVERSATION SKILLS.